Short CV

Susanne Janssen is a Full Professor of Sociology of Media and Culture at the Erasmus School of History, Culture, and Communication (Dept. of Media and Communication) at Erasmus University Rotterdam. In 2021, she was appointed a member of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences (KNAW).

Her research and teaching activities lie in the fields of cultural sociology, media and communications research, and the sociology of the arts and literature. Susanne Janssen has published widely on the role of cultural mediators (e.g., critics, journalists, curators, editors, marketers) in the creation, dissemination, and valuation of literature, music, and other art forms; changes, continuities, and cross-national differences in the classification of culture; the social and cultural significance of popular music heritage; and processes, structures, and impacts of cultural globalization.

Her current research projects focus on the consequences of increased diversity and digitalization for agents, institutions, structures, processes, and practices in the fields of media, culture, education, and politics.

Susanne Janssen currently leads a large-scale Horizon 2020 research project, entitled INVENT: European Inventory of Societal Values of Culture as a Basis for Inclusive Cultural Policies in the Globalizing World. This EU-funded international collaborative project (2020-2024) involves leading scholars and research institutions based in nine different countries. She also co-directs the Doing Diversity project which examines diversity practices in the educational, cultural, and sports sectors in the City of Rotterdam (2022-2024).

Janssen was awarded the prestigious VICI grant (2003) for her Cultural Classification Systems in Transition project from the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research (NWO). From 2010 to 2014, she directed another large-scale international collaborative research project: Popular Music Heritage, Cultural Memory and Cultural Identity which was funded as part of the HERA Joint Research Programme Cultural Dynamics: Inheritance and Identity.

Janssen also received several other major project grants, including an Erasmus Research Excellence grant (REI), four NWO PhD in the Humanities grants, a HERA Knowledge Exchange grant, and funding from the Erasmus Initiative Vital Cities and Citizens. In addition, she was part of the research team of the NWO-funded Creative Industries-Smart Culture project on Sustainable Live Music Ecologies (POPLIVE).

Nineteen PhD dissertations have been completed under Janssen's supervision. Currently, she (co)supervises ten PhD candidates (cf. her full CV).

Susanne Janssen is the founding chair of the Department of Media and Communication at Erasmus University Rotterdam, which she headed from its inception in 2008 until 2020. She is the founding co-director of the MA in Media Studies and the research master in the Sociology of Culture, Media and the Arts (top-rated programme 2014, 2016 and 2017) and the founding Dean of the International Bachelor in Communication and Media (IBCoM) which was awarded the NVAO Distinctive Quality Feature for Internationalisation and the European Certificate for Quality in Programme Internationalisation (2014; re-accredited in 2019).

She was also the founding academic director of ERMeCC, the Erasmus Research Centre for Media, Communication, and Culture (2008-2023), which was in 2023 transformed into the faculty-wide Erasmus Research Institute for Media, Culture, History and Society (ERMeCHS). ERMeCHS unites more than 100 researchers and over fifty Ph.D. candidates from a variety of international and disciplinary backgrounds and is home to one of the largest research groups focusing on the social dimensions of media, culture, and the arts worldwide.

Susanne Janssen performed manifold executive and advisory services in academia and the cultural sector. She served, among other things, on the Dutch Council for Culture in the Netherlands, the founding committee of the Netherlands-Flemish Communication Association (NEFCA), and the NWO Cultural Dynamics programme board and as chair-elect of the European Research Network for the Sociology of the Arts (ESA). From 2010-2012, Janssen was co-editor-in-chief of Poetics, the premier journal for empirical research on culture, media, and the arts, and a leading journal in sociology, for which she presently serves as an advisory editor.
